The Spirit of HHS

Jodi Taylor and Gloria Villa show their spirit by painting lockers. Band members are always a spirited group.

1 The spirit of friendly competition was shown at the Stamford game.

2 Peggy Ruiz and Leiza Morales show their spirit of learning.

3 Coach Martin explains the spirit of competition to junior high girls.

4 Emily SoRelle and Misty Bartley join others in their class in the spirit of inquiry.

5 Secret Spiriter Tammy Everton builds spirit with a gift in a locker.

Spirit Is Dedication

What is HHS spirit? Spirit is a quality which is difficult to describe. It is defined as the "vital principle or animating force . . ." To have spirit is to encourage or to impart determination to. It is characterized by strong loyalty and dedication to something. What is it that HHS students are dedicated to? We are dedicated to striving to be the best to bring honor to ourselves and our school. We take pride in what we do — a pride we show day by day in our school activities, whether it is band, sports, cheerleading, academics, or clubs.

School spirit and pride are shown by each student who strives to reach new heights of accomplishments either through competition with others or competition with himself. Our teachers exhibit spirit and pride through encouraging us to reach our potential and through supporting us in our activities. A teacher may wear black and gold on game days or simply pat a student on the back to show encouragement — but it all boils down to showing school spirit.

The community, too, supports and encourages us by taking an active interest in our school through the band boosters, the athletic boosters, or by lending financial support to the school organizations.

HHS spirit, what is it? It is the common thread that entwines our lives and ties us together with our school, our community, and all those HHS students who have gone before us and all who will come after us. We all stand firm in our commitment to INDIAN PRIDE.

Friendships Grow With Care

Friendship has been described as a young tree that must be planted in rich soil, watered properly with common sense to establish deep roots, and then grown in the sunshine of time. Friends are found all over this campus. As friends, we share all the good in life with each other. We also tend to need each other for support. Friends seem to be able to pull us up from the isolation we put ourselves into. Because some are wacky, crazy, funny, and even serious, we know they can cheer us up.

Look around. What do you see? You see students who are your friends and enjoy your company. When you talk on the phone, who do you talk to? When you are studying, who helps you? When you go cruising, who goes with you? It's that special friend.

The secret of a successful friendship is to treat everyone with respect. So as your friendships grow with the reflection of happiness, keep in mind that friendships often last forever.

Friends love to tell what happened to them over the week-end. Kim Short, Mindy Smith, and Vicky Chavez exchange stories.

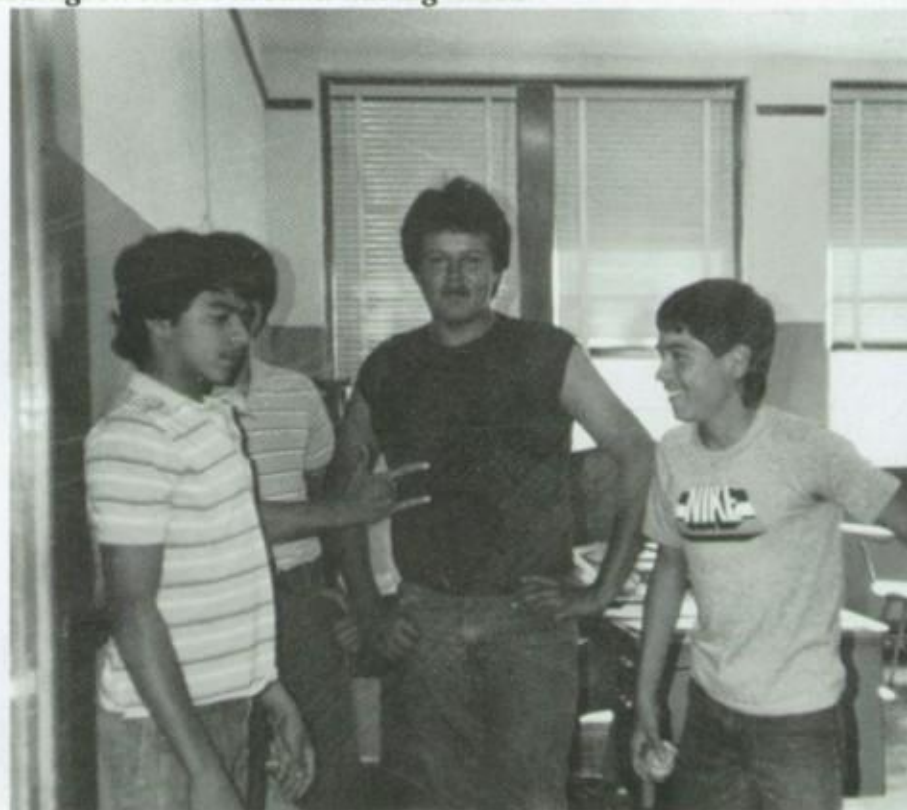

A favorite hangout at school is the parking lot. Rodney Johnson, Daniel Swann, Fred Shaw, and Stephon Brockington clown around during lunch.

► Noah Gonzales, Raymond Gonzales, and Joe Ray Camacho discuss whether they have time to get a quick drink of water before the tardy bell rings.

Mickey Dunnam and Doug Davis practice welding.

Shanna Mueller waits for Joey Thomas to get his books so they can walk to class together.

Sam Beaky, Eric Mullen and Dusty Meeks travel together to class.

Vicky Chavez puts a neck hold on Ponciano Lopez.

Jeff Neal bids April Brandon a reluctant good-bye.

▲ Sometimes two heads are better than one. Sharla Jetton and Lori Darden work together on an English assignment.

► Showing their versatility on "Backwards Day," twirlers Dala Harris, Wendy Smith, and Shanna Mueller lead (?) cheers.

Traveling long hours on a school bus gives friends a chance to talk. Rebecca Flores, Janie Villa, Debra Teague, and Emily Dunnam wait patiently.

Joy McKeever and Teresa Rodriguez leave the locker room for another basketball practice.

▲ Meeting at lockers between classes makes the day go faster for Lori Lane and Robyne Weaver.

► Sandra Thornhill seems to enjoy her new friend Jodi Taylor, an exchange student from Australia.

Being a friend means lending a helping hand. Janie Villa gives Joel Torres help with an assignment.

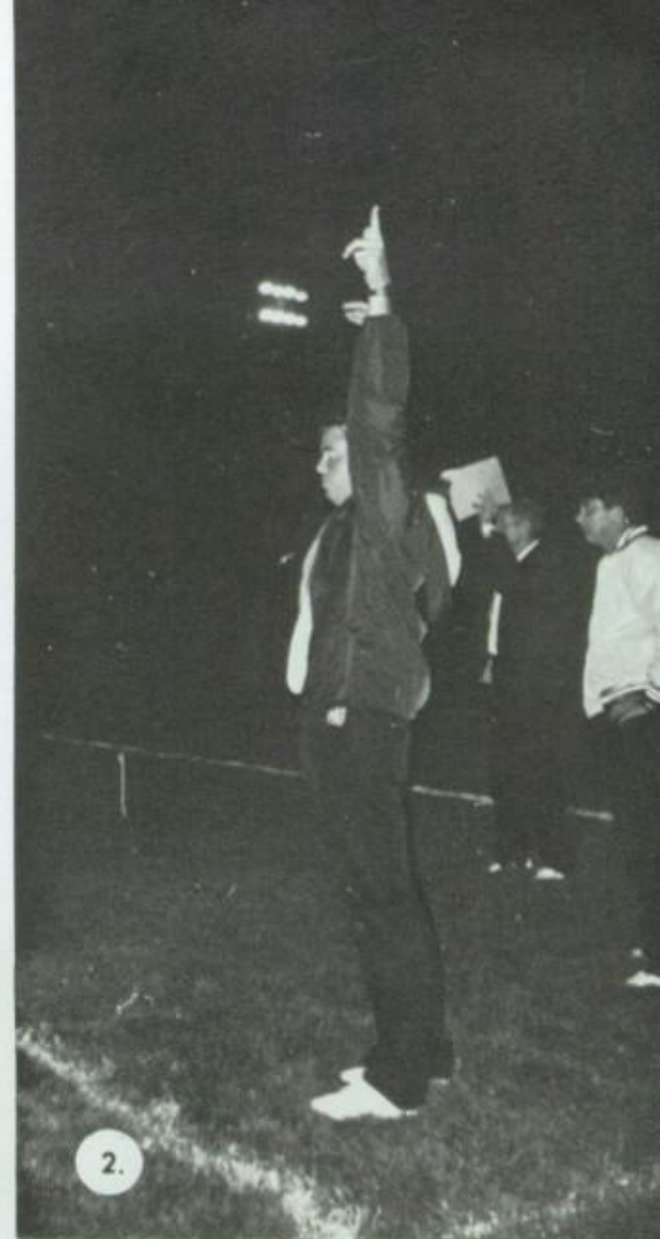

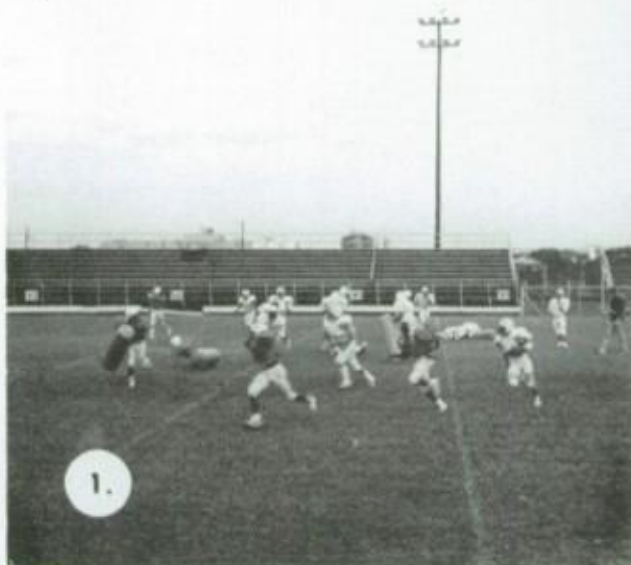

At summer band camp the twirlers, Shanna Mueller, Wendy Smith, and Dala Harris, prove that "birds of a feather flock together."

Teamwork Brings Success

For anything to succeed, there must be teamwork. Each individual must be willing to set aside personal ambition and work for the success of the entire group. Teamwork is best described as a group of students working together to achieve the best.

To be successful, every member of the team, whether he/she is in the spotlight or not, must be the best. Then the work of each individual will bring success and honor to the entire team and pride to HHS.

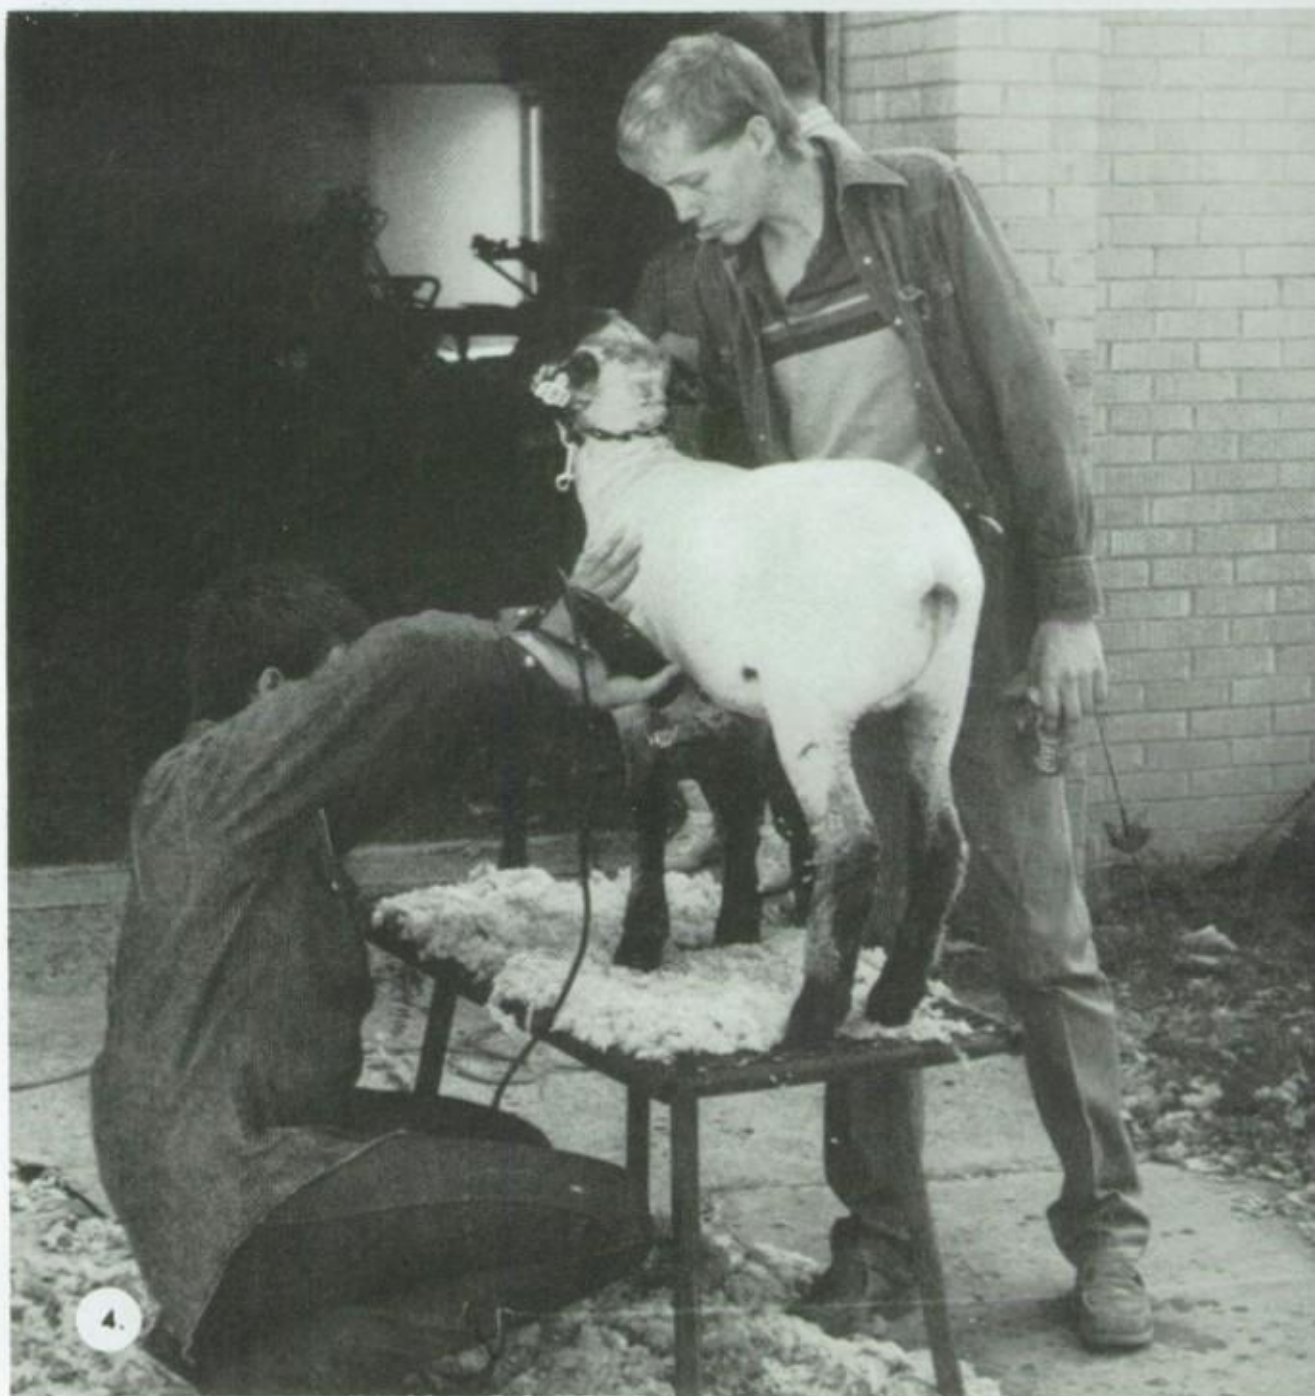

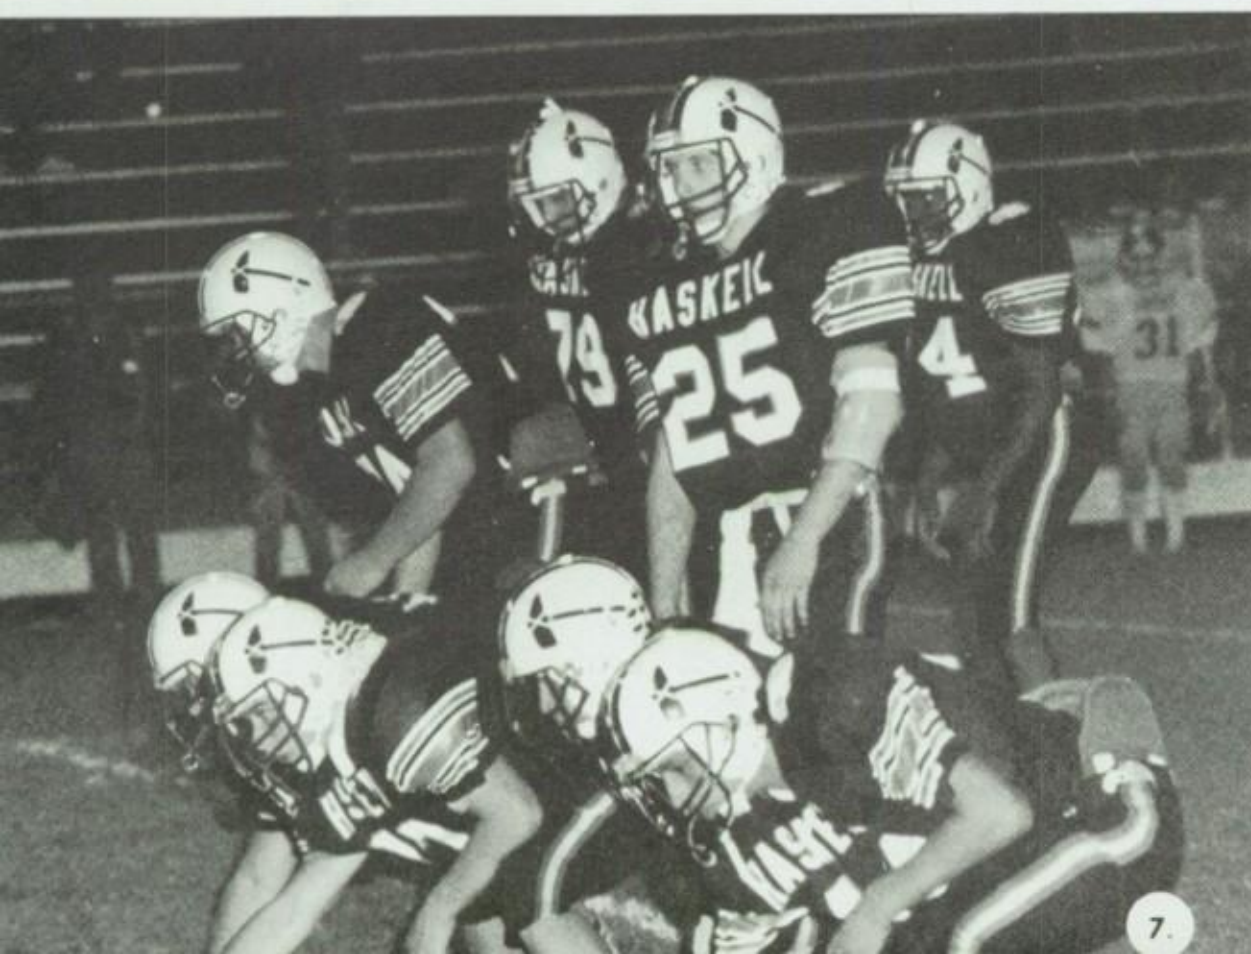

1 To learn to work as a team takes practice, practice, practice. Steven Rodriquez follows blockers Fred Shaw and Stephon Brockington during a hard workout.

2 A coach is an important member of the team. Coach Moree signals to the players during a football game.

3 Producing a yearbook requires an abundance of ideas. Elizabeth Lopez, Lorie Alvarez, Steven Rodriquez, Emily Camacho, Debra Teague, and Jeff Neal pool their ideas for a layout.

4 Mickey Dunnam lends a helping hand to Doug Davis as he prepares a lamb for showing.

1 Members of the junior high girls basketball team prepare to show their teamwork.

2 Practicing working together are the junior and senior girls, who learn plays for the Powder Puff Football game.

3 Football Manager Joey Swinney lends aid to the coaches who work with injured Joel Torres.

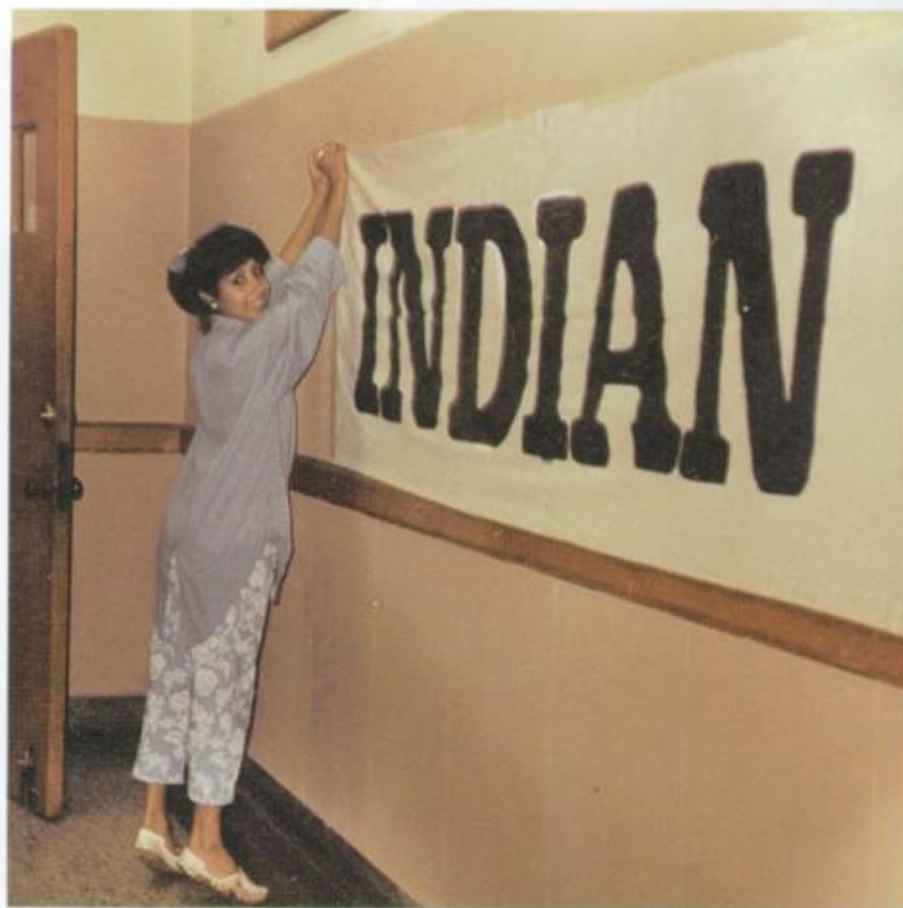

4 Setting the beat for the entire band are drummers Kelly Klose, George Watson, and Shane Buchanan.

5 An excellent place to see the effects of teamwork is in the HHS Band.

6 Senior players work together to give leadership to the team.

7 Quarterback Mark Young prepares to snap the ball against the Pied Pipers.

Cheerleader Lorie Alvarez, who prefers the short pants and long-tailed shirt, puts finishing touches to the Indian Pride banner.

Proving that guys just don't have to wear jeans, Marty Martinez and Joe Martinez wear suspenders and baggies to school to add variety to their wardrobes.

A Rainbow of Ropers. The most popular boot for both girls and guys is the Roper. While guys may wear brown or gray, the girls can choose from a variety of colors.

Student Styles

"What am I going to wear to school today?" That's one question students have asked themselves every morning for many years.

In the fifties, the petticoats and ponytails, flat-tops and ducktails swept the school. Girls wore bobbysocks with rolled-up jeans, and their shirttails out, while guys wore jeans, white tee-shirts, and jackets.

The sixties and seventies saw pretty much the same styles with the mini-skirts and bell-bottom pants. The burrs of the early sixties gave way to shoulder-length and even longer hair for guys, while the girls backcombed their hair to form beehives and bouffants.

But the students of the eighties possess their own unique style. The desire for individuality has reached its extreme in the eighties. Anything you wear these days is considered stylish. The brightly colored shirts, long and short skirts, flat or high heels, colored Ropers, long-tailed shirts, and the assortment of wooden necklaces are just some of the styles seen in our school. In addition to jeans, guys now wear suspenders and pleated pants. Hairstyles can be short, long, curly, or "spiked." Some of the students are even bringing back the styles of the past with the flat-tops of the fifties and the short skirts of the sixties showing up again. As you can tell, the spirit of style once exhibited by the students of the past remain to live on in the students of the eighties.

Of course, some styles never change. So, if you get stuck on what to wear to school, you can always grab a pair of jeans, a sweatshirt, and tennis shoes and go in style.

"Hello Sonic?..." Instead of worrying about what to wear, these girls are worrying about what to eat for lunch. Wearing a denim mini-skirt and boxer shoes, Sandra Thornhill places an order for Janie Villa and Elizabeth Lopez, who are also wearing their mini-skirts.

Moments to Relax, Hard to Find

It takes some kind of miracle for a student to fit all of his/her activities into one day, much less have time to relax. Not only that, some people's work doesn't end when the 3:30 school bell rings. Many students have jobs after school to go to.

But when there is a much desired spare moment, everyone likes to "kick back." Whether a person chooses to relax by taking a nap or talking to friends about last week's gossip, everyone treasures those relaxed moments.

All in all, relaxation is a time to pursue different interests, even if it means just "pigging out" or watching cartoons.

No time to rest at home, so Steven Rodriguez steals a moment at the end of class.

Marking prices is just one of Joe Martinez's duties at his after-school job at Modern Way.

Whether it's Heavy Metal or Country and Western, all teenagers listen to music whenever they can. Kristen Campbell and Gloria Villa compare their favorite albums.

▲ Teenagers often spend hours talking on the phone. Albert Alvarez is no exception.

▲▲ Louie Torres checks out the sports section, of course.

◀◀ Riding on the band bus seems to have given George Watson an Excedrin headache.

◀ How do you pass time away riding the band bus? Cassie McGhee and Shane Buchanan tell jokes all the way home.

◀ Patricia Henry hurries to find her keys at lunch.

T O G E T H E R N E S S

Throughout the years we develop friendships with our classmates. Some are shallow and artificial, but a few are longlasting. With our close friends, we share a common bond. Togetherness is a way to express a true feeling of security among friends.

Picture of Excellence

by Emily Dummam &
Kim Short

The junior class is the picture of excellence as shown by their scores on the TEAMS and SAT tests. Fifty juniors took the TEAMS test, and out of those 50, 47 passed both the math and language arts sections. In addition to being outstanding in academics, the juniors are extraordinary in their feelings for each other, too. They are more like a family than just classmates. Twenty-three juniors have been in school together since kindergarten, and 27 newcomers have been adopted into the family.

For the juniors this is a year of remembrance before their hectic senior year. It is a time to reflect on the joys and sadnesses; triumphs and errors; and those sweet memories everyone has.

But the juniors of today look to the future, and envision their senior year and the conquests only they are capable of achieving.

Each year, a new class of students comes into high school, the freshman. Many questions go through their minds. What will their classes be like? How will the other high school students treat them? Will they survive Mr. McCoy?

Everyone in high school knows how hard it is to be a freshman. It's a big step coming up from junior high. This is the first year they have to choose their classes to go along with what they want to do with the rest of their lives. They also have to think about getting the twenty-three credits needed to graduate.

At the first of the year, most freshmen are immature and don't know what to expect. As the year goes by, they seem to mature and realize that they aren't children anymore. They are faced with the responsibility of making decisions that affect their future.

The best thing about the freshman year is it only lasts one year.

Big Step To Junior High

Going from elementary school to junior high is one of the biggest steps a student takes. Junior high offers many new experiences. Incoming students must learn new rules, classes, and teachers. When a student enters junior high, he is given more responsibility. He is able to do what the upperclassmen are doing — playing together on the same teams, sharing victories and disappointments.

Some junior high students described their feelings about being in junior high this way:

"It's just another step to getting ready for the outside world." Geneva Lopez

"One good thing about going to school with high school students is seeing all the real good-looking women." Chad Gibson

"Junior high has made me feel like I'm getting older and maturing." Emily SoRelle

"I think of my life as being a big step ladder, and junior high is just another step into life." Jay Miller

LEADERSHIP

"A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."

With these words, Henry Adams expresses the importance of teaching.

Many people think that teachers are always "out to get students," but that is not true. Teachers play an important role in everyone's lives.

Another important job is answering the phone, filing papers, typing papers, and running errands for whomever may need one. These duties are handled by the personnel of the school.

Maintenance

Long before the students and teachers arrive at school, another group of workers have begun their day. The maintenance personnel perform many jobs that keep the school running comfortably. First, they arrive early to turn on the heat for the building, drive the buses, cook breakfast, and plan lunch. All through the day they clean the building, take out the trash, and clean the school grounds. Our maintenance men are also responsible for repairing school equipment. For example, they keep the buses on the road, and during hot weather, they keep the air conditioners operating. Without the maintenance personnel, the school doors could not open.

Teachers Show Creativity

by Debra Teague

Going into history class, I find myself looking on the board to see what today's lesson will be. Instead of seeing my teacher's unforgettable handwriting, I see a stick-figure drawing of someone. Who is it? Is it a wild drawing of Coach Moree drawn by a daring student?

The bell rings, and I get out my notebook for my usual lecture notes when Coach Moree begins to draw squares and writes a bunch of numbers on the board that have absolutely no meaning to me. As the last square is drawn, he begins to explain: "I thought for a change we would play a game to test your knowledge of the chapter that we just covered. Everyone has seen the game Wheel of Fortune on television, well ... this is a classroom version of it." It is then that I realize that the stick-figure drawing is not of Coach Moree but of Vanna White.

Students who ordinarily never say a word in class begin to express their ideas about what the answers are. We were all having a fantastic time. No one could contain their guesses. It was so much fun that when the bell rang no one wanted to leave. We wanted to continue with the game. But the dreaded task of learning must go on, so we advanced to our next class only to visualize Vanna White and Pat Sajak. Playing the game helped us to learn the chapter, proving to be more educational than we had thought it would be.

For Coach Moree's students this was a welcome break in the day-to-day routine of learning. Other teachers also have created many ways of learning without pen and paper. Many times in English class, the teachers have used magazines to teach valuable lessons. Games that use homonyms, writing skills, and those that test your mind are among those that are included in this category. Field trips also teach unforgettable lessons. Approximately 30 parents and students met at 4:30 in the morning to view Haley's Comet. Mr. McCoy met the group and showed them where to look and what to look for. As a result, the comet, which caused such interest in 1910, was made more meaningful to its 1986 audience.

Most students view school and learning as tedious chores to be dreaded. The creativity of a good teacher proves that learning can be fun and interesting.

With all the pressures put on teachers, Mrs. Burris may be planning a career change. She is already practicing to be a punk-rocker by wearing her multi-colored wig.

Julie Roewe is trying to convince Coach Holt and Jerry Davis that her shoulder injury is not fake. Jerry Davis doesn't seem to be buying it, though.

COMPETITION

Competition is the major motivating force in the performance of an athlete. Any athlete must have the desire to compete against others in order to excel.

However, not only do athletes compete with others, but a good athlete competes with himself to reach his goals.

It takes a special person to be an athlete because of the desire to learn, to share, and to discipline himself.

Teamwork Needed

Ask anyone in Haskell to describe the 1986 Indian football season in one word. Most would say, "Disappointing." The tribe had the talent, but many of the players agreed, "We just didn't work together as a team." No matter how talented the players are, the team must work together and have a team effort to win.

The season started with high hopes for the team. The goal of many players was to win district. The Indians played their first opponent, the state ranked Munday Moguls, a tough game tying them with 14 points. However, Haskell lost to their next two opponents Holiday and Electra. Both teams made the playoffs later in the season. The next game was against Quana, who was picked to win their district. The press predicted Quana would have no problem in defeating Haskell by 18 points or more. But the unpredictable Indians came from behind to score two last quarter touchdowns. Quana tried a field goal in the last few seconds of the game to tie the score, but missed. The tribe from Haskell came out on top 24-21, in the most exciting game of the year. Following this spectacular upset, the Indians lost to Knox City 13-10, to end up on the other side of an upset.

Hoping that district would provide the new beginning the team needed, the Indians began by defeating Hamlin 28-13, to even a three-year grudge that had seen the Indians give up 76 points to the Pipers. The defeat at the hands of the Albany Lions, however, turned the season in the wrong direction, and the Indians fell to every district opponent. The Indians had the talent, but not the team work to win the goal of District Champs.

In the Playoffs ... Five In A Row

The Haskell Indians, who were ranked as low as fifth in District, once again overcame another season of doubt and criticism to make it into the playoffs for the fifth year in a row.

Junior Mark Young, the only starter returning from last year, and second-year lettermen Jerry Davis and Patrick Perez added experience to the young, new talent on the team — sophomores Brad Bevel and Dusty Meeks and freshman James Rike. The new coach, Alan Atchison, watched his young team rack up close victory after close victory, beating their opponents by only a few points every game.

The District Championship game gave Haskell a sense of "deja vu," as they watched the Hawley Bearcats walk away with the victory at Hardin-Simmons University again, a repeat of last year.

As the runner-up team, the Indians faced the Coleman Bluecats for the Bi-District title. The Indians trailed by more than 10 points at one time in the game, but through a second-half attack, the Indians made a spectacular comeback. A steal by the Bluecats and a quick two points in the last seconds of the game gave the Indians time for only one more basket, and the Tribe fell 60-59.

Maidens Are True Winners

They work, they laugh, they cry, but it's all for one common goal — to be the best that they can be." Coach Martin

What are the ingredients that make up a true winner? Is it just scoring the most points against the opponents or having the best won-loss record? Since the Maidens wrapped up district with only one loss against the Hawley Bearcats, they won the District title. Does that title alone make them true winners?

No, the won-loss record alone doesn't determine winners. The key to a winning ball club would have to be love and respect for one another. The Maidens spend many hours working together, laughing, crying, and sweating. On the court, they show their air of confidence and pride for their team and school. For those sitting on the bench, they yell encouragement for their teammates playing. Most important, all the players have formed a bond within the team called friendship.

The title "District Champs" is very important to the Maidens. This goal was set at the very beginning of the season. By the end of the season, the Maidens had reached their goal. Along the way, they formed an everlasting bond. In the words of Coach Martin, "They are champions in every way."

Being in a club can give a sense of responsibility that comes with being involved. Opportunities are given to the FHA and FFA members through scholarships and field trips. The FHA members attend the State FHA convention, and scholarships are offered, also. The FFA members attend contests throughout the state. The FFA, as well as the FHA, are given opportunities to apply for scholarships. FFA members compete in many areas, from land judging to extemporaneous speaking events. While the other clubs and organizations are not as active locally as the FFA and FHA, members enjoy the honor of being affiliated with national organizations. These include The National Honor Society and Quill and Scroll.

CHEERLEADERS

Giving up summer vacation, time, losing sleep, and practicing until muscles ache are not the reasons a high school girl wants to become a cheerleader. However, there are just as many positive points involved. A cheerleader has the honor of representing the school, setting good examples for those looking up to her. Whether it's in or out of a cheerleading suit, a cheerleader always puts her school first and tries to live up to the pride and trust of classmates.

The Quill and Scroll Society is an international organization that recognizes juniors and seniors for scholastic achievements and for their publications staff work. It is the only honor society for high school journalists.

To be eligible, students must be in the upper third of their class (using their four-year cumulative average), excel on a publication staff and be recommended by their sponsor. The Haskell Quill and Scroll Society was chartered in 1957 but disbanded in 1973. It was sponsored by Mrs. Kathleen Diggs and Mrs. Hazel Weaves and named for the former Free Press editor, Lon Pate. This organization was reorganized in 1986.

"What side does the fork go?" LaKay Gibbs asks, as Janie Villa and Gena Decker try to explain what side it goes on.

No, a tree is not growing in the Homemaking Cottage. Velma Castillio, Sylvia Alvarez, and JoAnn Villa decorate the tree for the Annual Christmas Party.

Members released red and white balloons at the Homemaking Cottage to start Recognition Week. Other activities of the week included decorating lockers, giving apples to teachers, providing food for a needy family, and a salad luncheon for members.

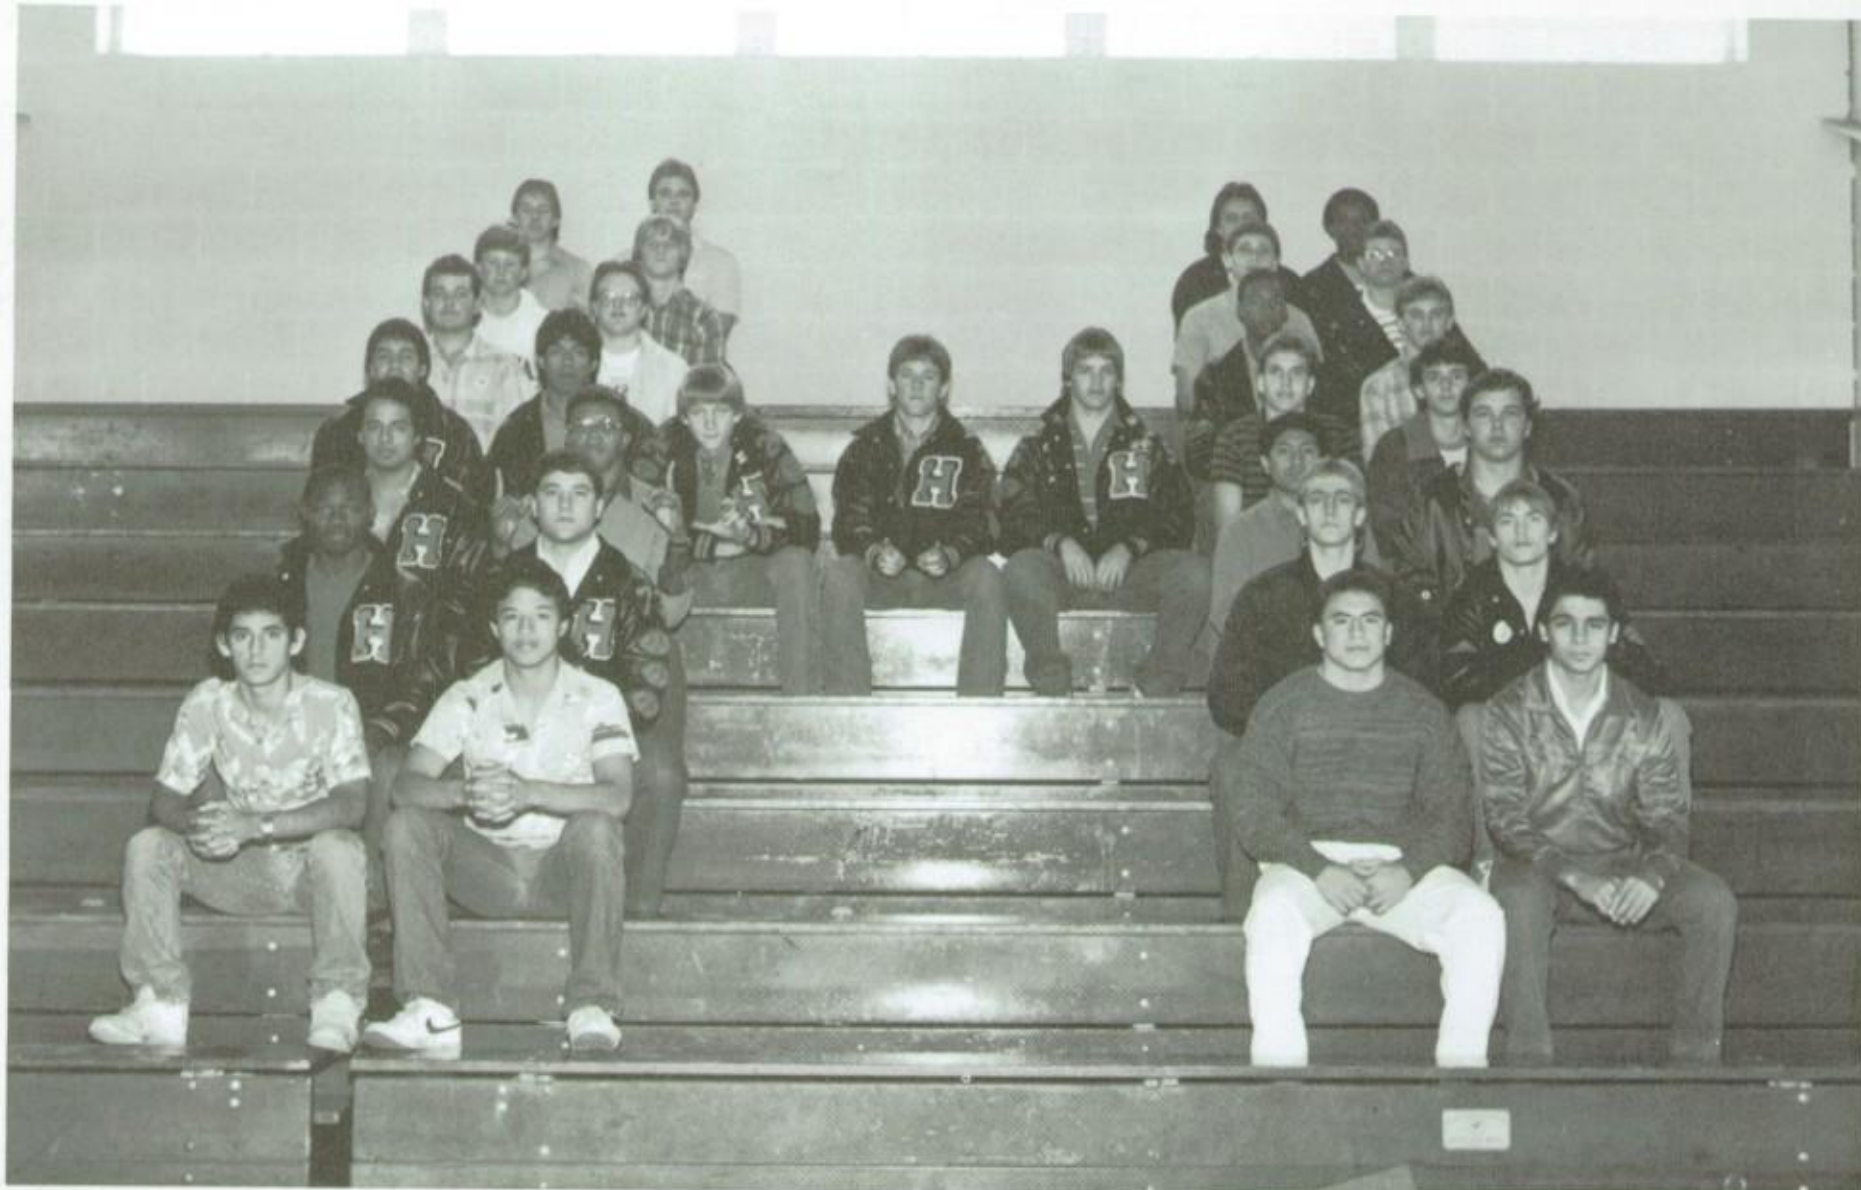

Could that be a punk rocker under those glasses? No, it's Mrs. Wanda Thompson saying FHA Advisors need beauty sleep too.

Dala Harris doesn't seem to want to be an FHA Locker decoration even though Kristy Brister and Wendy Smith think she fits just fine.

Powder Puff Football

If you looked onto the football field of HHS on November 1, 1986, you might think things were a little mixed up. Instead of the usual team on the field the players were all girls, while the regular players were on the sidelines cheering them on.

No, you weren't in the twilight zone, you were watching the Powder-Puff football game, the Junior class money-making project. The Fruitloops (Freshmen and Sophomores) took on the Terminators (Juniors and Seniors) in an exciting game.

The Terminators were ahead 6-0 in the fourth period, when the Fruitloops scored on a sweep around the right side. Joy McKeever broke the tie on the next play as she crossed the goal and made the score 8-6.

The halftime highlight was the crowning of King Puff, senior Joey Thomas. Thomas was awarded with flowers and a kiss. Other nominees were freshman Kyle Darden, sophomore Josh Reid, and junior Marty Martinez. Cheerleaders were also present to raise spirit and cheer on the girls. The project raised about $1,000 to help the Juniors in having a banquet for the Seniors.

1 The victorious Fruitloops celebrate after the game.

3 King Puff Joey Thomas looks a little out of place with a mum on his coat, but his escort, Shanna Mueller, thinks its cute.

4 Senior Jodie Taylor looks more like she is practicing for the can-can dance than kicking the ball.

5 Missy Davis prepares to go out for the "long bomb" in practice.

*Here's a school full of youngsters,
Running from room to room.
Chasing behind them, a teacher,
Yelling and screaming
For them to Sit down.
Mr. Blakley is the chief
Of this little tribe
Who are full of mischief and pride.
They're growing and learning
With each passing day,
Just how to act
And what to say.
They're looking forward
With anticipation
To taking their places
On the "reservation."
They are the future
"Indian Nation."*

The '87 Chieftain staff would like to give credit where credit is due — to our advertisers. The only way this annual can be published is from the advertising of those faithful companies who pay for a space in the annual. Without these people, the annual would cost more for the students, and special things like colored pictures would be omitted. Thank you, Advertisers, for helping to make the '87 Chieftain a reality.
